Response to your request for official information

Thank you for your request under the Official Information Act 1982 (the Act) to Manatū Hauora (the Ministry of Health) on 17 January 2023 for information regarding a list of proposed banned items in the Therapeutic Products Bill (the Bill). You requested:

Adolf Hitler. The Bill establishes a new regulator headed by an independent statutory officer with a wide remit:

THERAPEUTIC BILL

Following this Bill's passage, seeing Labour has a majority it is likely to get passed, I would like to know:

Do you have a list of proposed banned items from the not yet appointed dictator the Statutory Officer. If you do, please send me the complete list.

Contrary to some recent reports on social media, there is no list of prohibited ingredients in the current Bill, and no proposal to ban common herbs and spices used in cooking.

Between 2013 and 2017, a Permitted Substances list for NHPs was developed to accompany the draft Natural Health and Supplementary Products (NHSP) Bill. This list was not finalised and exists only in draft form. It has no relevance to the Therapeutic Products Bill. Work on the NHSP Bill ceased in 2017.

If the Therapeutic Products Bill passes, products, substances, and ingredients will be identified through subsequent secondary legislation and rules and regulations. This process will involve significant outreach and consultation with stakeholders and be undertaken with full transparency. Further information is available on the Ministry's website: www.health.govt.nz/our-work/regulation-health-and-disability-system/natural-health-products#faq.

You may wish to review clause 29 of the Bill, which defines what a natural health product (NHP) is, and clause 30, which describes at a very high level the kinds of substances that can be NHP ingredients. Clause 29 also provides that a product it is intended to be administered by injection or parenteral infusion cannot be a NHP (but it could be a medicine, for example). You can find a draft of the Bill at: www.legislation.govt.nz/bill/government/2022/0204/latest/DLM6914502.html
